Bart Legum

Founding Partner, Honlet Legum Arbitration, France

Barton Legum is a founding partner of Honlet Legum Arbitration, a Paris-based arbitration boutique law firm. He concentrates on international arbitration, both commercial and investor-State. He has over 30 years of experience as arbitrator, counsel and expert witness. Civil law, common law and public international law have governed in cases he addressed. His case experience spans a wide variety of different sectors. These include energy, mining, construction, pharmaceuticals, banking, manufacturing, telecommunications and others. He is frequently appointed in cases involving States or state enterprises as well as business-business disputes. He has acted as conciliator as well as arbitrator.

Bart is a Vice-Chair of the Board of the SCC Arbitration Institute. He is a Past Chair of the American Bar Association's Section of International Law, a professional organization with over 20,000 members in 90 countries. The President of the World Bank designated him as a member of the ICSID Panel of Conciliators.

In addition to decades of private practice at prominent international law firms, Bart's career has included years of government service. He has served both as a law clerk to a US federal court of appeals judge and in the Office of the Legal Adviser of the US State Department. In that latter role, he acted as lead counsel for the US Government in defending the first arbitrations against it under the investment chapter of the North American Free Trade Agreement. The US won every case heard under his tenure.

Bart also serves as editor of two publications: International Litigation Strategies and Practice, an ABA publication in its third edition; and Investment Treaty Arbitration, a Lexology publication going into its eleventh edition.

Bart serves on the Executive Committee of the Institute for Transnational Arbitration and is a member of many professional associations, including the American Bar Association, the International Bar Association, the American Society of International Law and the International Council for Commercial Arbitration. He frequently publishes and speaks on arbitration, and has taught investment treaty arbitration at the University of Paris I Panthéon Sorbonne.

Prior to founding Honlet Legum Arbitration, he was a partner at an international law firm, where he served as global co-chair for litigation and dispute resolution and head of the investment treaty arbitration practice.

Paul Verhagen

Author of The Techtonic Shift; Strategic Liaison, University of Amsterdam; Senior Fellow, The Hague Centre for Strategic Studies (HCSS), The Netherlands/United States

Paul Verhagen is an author and expert on artificial intelligence, technology, and geopolitics, and senior fellow on geopolitics and technology at The Hague Centre for Strategic Studies (HCSS). His work examines how the contest over strategic technology is redrawing the global economic and political order — and why the institutions built to govern the last order must evolve or fail to govern the next.

His book The Techtonic Shift (Das Mag, 2026) argues that institutional evolution is not a luxury but a definitional necessity for any political order. It traces how three converging forces — the stagnation of established institutions, the rise of Big Tech and AI as unaccountable quasi-state actors, and the return of great-power competition — are dissolving the boundary between public and private power, and with it the stable settlement of authority on which cross-border commercial and political relationships depend.

Trained as a physicist and philosopher before specializing in AI, Verhagen has lectured at Amsterdam University College and worked with the University of Amsterdam's Civic AI Lab, and brings an interdisciplinary lens shaped by lived experience across the Netherlands, the United States, and China. His analysis centers on the geopolitics of semiconductors, US–China technological competition, and Europe's struggle for strategic autonomy. He is a frequent commentator in international media on AI governance and the shifting balance of economic power.
